Adversity hasn't taken toll on girl

By Suzanne Sproul

Michelle Kieta is one tough little girl.

Despite many severe health problems related to the tuberous sclerosis she has, the 7-year-old Upland youngster hasn't let adversity get her down. She's busy, instead, with all the wonderment of childhood.

When she's not playing with the family dog, Scooter, she's running or riding bikes with brothers David, Andrew or Danny.

"I really haven't had any problems," the talkative blonde said.

But Michelle's mom, also named Michelle, knows better. She's been through the terror of having her daughter go through brain surgery and the agony of watching her daughter have a stroke, which left her blind and paralyzed.

"Michelle really is a wonderful little girl. I don't think she really does think she's had any problems. There have been moments. Like letting her ride her bike again after she had brain surgery, but you have to let her live.

"Michelle manages to see the bright side of life and it helps us all. Our main goal as a family is to continue to give her a normal childhood. She deserves one," Mrs. Kieta said.

Mrs. Kieta also remembers the helplessness she felt when, shortly after Michelle was born, her doctor handed her a list of "places" to put her daughter.

"He flatly told me that the best thing to do was to put her somewhere, forget about her and go on with my life. He said she would ruin my marriage and my life. I told him I would never do that. Despite the problems, Michelle has done remarkably well. We're very proud of her," her mother said.

Tuberous sclerosis is a neurological disease characterized by uncontrollable seizures, severe mental retardation and multi-system benign tumors. When she was an infant, Michelle was plagued by seizures, as many as 12 a day. Then they stopped until a brain tumor developed and she had a stroke.

She has regained some vision, but remains totally blind in half of both eyes. She also now can walk, run and ride her bike. She recently competed in the Los Angeles Braille Olympics.

But her health problems aren't behind her, although she's doing well. Michelle now has several inoperable brain tumors, a tumor in her right eye and one in her heart. And the 7-year-old suffers with "precocious puberty," a pituitary problem, which will require $300 per shot

"Despite her circumstances, Michelle is a quite normal lovely child. She is the third of four children and we try to maintain a completely normal environment for our family," her mother said.

Michelle is a member of Brownie Troop 1033, attends a visually handicapped class at Dona Merced School in Rancho Cucamonga and will receive her First Communion Sunday at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Upland.

"Tuberous sclerosis is a little known disease that is actually fairly common. Upland has at least two other children with the disease. Knowledge is a tremendous tool and I would like to inform my community at least in some small way. Michelle has been an inspiration to many in her seven years and that inspiration is something I'd like to spread," Mrs. Kieta said.

Mrs. Kieta works at the City of Hope in Duarte because she says she knows the caring atmosphere everyone at the medical center shows patients and their families.

"That's where Michelle had her surgery. I was so impressed by their caring attitude. I wanted to thank them. I didn't have any money so I gave them myself. I also will be going into nursing school this fall," she said.

For the Kieta family, every day is a celebration of life.

Michelle even has a special prayer that she and her mother say every day.

"God's love is flowing through me, dissolving anything unlike itself. Thank you, father," the youngster said.

"That prayer keeps her healthy," the mother said.

Unification costs Upland more than expected

By Natalie Shore

The first year of unification has cost the Upland School District $2.2 million more than expected, district officials reported to school board members last week.

The $3.1 million projected ending balance for the district's 1987-88 budget will be closer to $1 million, according to updated figures presented to the board.

Although the district will end the year with a third less money than expected, the budget still is financially sound, Superintendent George Renworth said.

"It was never a case where the district's finances were in jeopardy," Renworth said.

District officials knew there would be some unknown costs and did not expect to end the year with a full $3 million balance, said board president Frank Guzowski.

An usually high ending balance, 10 percent of the total $33 million budget, was deliberately set aside to accommodate those unforeseeable costs resulting from the unification, he said.

Despite the favorable figures, the budget will not automatically trigger a year-end, 1.5 percent salary increase for employees, Renworth said.

The ending balance has already dipped below the $1.6 million level, 5 percent of the total budget which guarantees employees the right to negotiate additional income each year, he said.

"That does not mean that a salary increase is out of the question," Renworth said. The governing board in the past has given salary increases when the balance fell below 5 percent, he

The bulk of the $2.2 million shortfall has gone to hiring additional staff, adjusting salaries to higher schedules and increasing fringe benefits, Renworth said.

"Total salary and related costs were $1,765,000," he said. In addition to increased expenditures, the district also

R.C.'s 1,000-bed jail to begin being built this summer

Now in the final design stages, ground could be broken this summer on a new 1,000-bed county iail in Rancho Cucamonga.

"I can't tell you the month right now," but "we can look toward this summer," confirmed 2nd District county Supervisor Jon Mikels. "We haven't finalized all the design yet," but "the basic design is set," he said. "It's in the later phases, all but the final touches.

The county purchased 120 acres at the northwest corner of Etiwanda Avenue and Fourth Street for the project, but passers-by will have difficulty identifying the structure, Mikels predicted.

The preliminary site plan shows it up in the far northwest corner, which puts it as far away from Fourth Street as you can be on the site. All the barbed wire won't be visible at all. Anything that tells you it's a jail won't be visible at all," he said.

Placed on a 40-acre corner of the lot, most of the jail will be shielded from public view by an extensive landscape buffer and will resemble an office building, according to Mikels.

Facing the distant street will be a long central services administration building, and the actual jail facilities behind it will take the form of a pair of octagon-shaped modules, he

All structures will be twostories high, a departure from the single-story complex county officials first envisioned for the

The jail modules "will all be essentially self-contained, Mikels said. Prisoners will not have to leave the buildings for recreation, meals, visiting hours or medical services.

The description is reassuring to Ontario Mayor Howard Snider, who protested loudly last year when the site, adjoining Ontario and Fontana, was announced. He had been promised, he said, that the jail would not be placed in or near his city.

"I think it's as palatable as it can be," Snider said of the tentative plans. "I don't want it on Fourth Street looking at the Ontario city limits. I've got to assume my objections were apparently evaluated and concurred with. I'm very grateful they've chosen to put it at the far end

About half the approximately $60 million construction cost will be covered by state funding already in hand, Mikels said.

Mikels said officials would like to see a new juvenile justice center on part of the remaining 80 acres south of the planned jail, but state legislation that would have provided grant money died this year.

The county's only juvenile hall, in San Bernardino, is badly overcrowded, a condition which could eventually build to lawsuit proportions like the crowded county jails did last year, he said. "The average daily attendance is above the design capacity."

The county Probation Department has been requesting a new juvenile hall for years to help ease the load.

That's given rise to the possibility of locating a new one in the West Valley, Mikels said. 'Not just a juvenile hall but a juvenile justice center that would include a juvenile court."

"The (Rancho Cucamonga) site has the land and puts the services in the most populated portion of the county. But right now we don't know where the dollars are going to come from," Mikels said.

Such a center also would be a boon to local police, because officers escorting youth to the juvenile hall presently lose hours of patrol time while making the trip to San Bernardino and back, he added.

Other possible uses for the lower half of the 120-acre lot would include office buildings and service-related businesses, Mikels said.

lost $700,000 of anticipated state funding when 250 students remained in the Chaffey Joint Union High School District, he

The $2.2 million budgetary difference does not mean the district is in the red. Renworth said. The district's deficit is really only about $200,000, said the superintendent, who defined the deficit as the amount of money less than the district's $1.2 million ending balance for its 1986-87 fiscal year.

'Two hundred thousand dollars out of a $33 million budget is nothing," he said.

But the district had a greater ending balance from a smaller budget the year before

Justice center's windows reflect recipe for disaster

By Rebecca Pavitt Raney

A "potential recipe for disaster" is cooking in the Foothill Communities Law and Justice Center, according to a survey of 14 window panes on the north side of the court.

A preliminary report says that the glass "will in all probability fail in severe winds."

County officials commissioned the survey because high winds shattered four windows earlier this year. glass on the court is breaking 21/2 times more often than the 'normal predicted breakage.'

"In my opinion the glass is being severely over-stressed during 70-plus (mph) ... gusting conditions," wrote Bill Thomas, a senior associate for Construction Consulting Corp. in Huntington Beach.

Thomas declined to comment on the report because county officials have not officially released it to the public.

The report states that two factors weaken the windows. Glass holders do not overlap are no devices to keep the

Abandoning historic home may save others

By Lee Peterson

Plans to save one historical Rancho Cucamonga house have been scrapped due to extensive vandalism and severe weather damage the building has suffered.

The turn-of-the-century house, still sitting on blocks at a Center Avenue lot for more than a year, will not be moved to a new home on the Chaffey College campus, according to college officials and Joe Dilorio, the financial backer of the project.

The house, at one time the residence of the manager of the local winery that produced the Virginia Dare wine, was to be part of the college's proposed historical home park

However, the house did not fare well through the harsh winter storms and water damage was severe. Vandals also did their share.

In addition to interior damage, virtually every window of the house has been shattered. Broken, twisted blinds hang uselessly in the openings Dilorio, who has committed $250,000 to preserving a historical home, said the house has so deteriorated that the money could be more effectively spent elsewhere.

"We could do two or three other homes for what it would cost to preserve this one,'

Dilorio, a developer, pledged the funds to memorialize his daughter Caryn, who died in a car accident seven years ago at age 15.

The house, which now rests on a lot just north of Foothill Boulevard, was to be under shared ownership of the college, the city and their community foundations Dilorio said last week that it was decided recently to form a special committee of individuals from those bodies who would plan the next step.

The house's fate is not decided.

Dilorio, who is president of the Baldy View Chapter of the Building Industry Association. said if there had been a fence around the lot where the building sits it would not have stopped the vandals who really wanted to gain access.

Dilorio said though the house is not salvageable now, the idea for a historical home park still is viable. He credits Jim Anderson, Chaffey's vice president of planning and development, with the idea of the park.

may conclude within a month, but he didn't know what action would be taken "until we get all the facts.

"We don't know what the results are going to be. You don't know until you get the facts. I don't speculate,' Durbeck said.

Employees in the building don't have to speculate about potential problems with the dows

Wy Scalia left her office on the third floor just before her window shattered on Feb. 17

"How could you not be concerned?" the secretary said the day after it happened. "We're aware that they (the windows) can go. You're nervous about it."

She said most employees try to work outside offices on the north side of the building during windstorms shattered, Chuck Buquet, safety engineer of the county risk management division, joked about a solution.

The day after Scalia's window

'We could put up a four-story wall outside," he said.

Buquet refused to comment about the report because it is in litigation.

The report's tone is adamant about the importance of finding a solution, though

"Only extremely good luck prevented serious human injury." Thomas wrote

"I understand that only pure luck prevented the rooms from being occupied when the previous glass broke. I will leave to your imagination what 44 square feet of annealed glass exploding under 60 or 70 mph wind would do to a person standing within 5 to 15 feet from the window opening.

Jim Zajicek, principal of Kingsley School in Montclair, has been nominated for the 1988 National PTA Phoebe Apperson Hearst Outstanding Educator Award.

According to PTA president Karen Vogel, "Jim thrives on being at school and around children. They seem to draw strength from his presence and positive attitude." Children at Kingsley School receive positive behavior notices. Once a month six names are drawn from the students who received these notices. The winners get to go to lunch with Zajicek.

Zajicek received his bachelor of arts degree in psychology from Sioux Falls College, South Dakota. He received a master's of arts degree in school administration from Cal State Fullerton.

Ticket fee change suits ALHS fine

By Lee Peterson

Errant student drivers nabbed in the act of illegal parking from now on will feel a little less pain when they pay their fines to the

The stiff $52 fine for a parking ticket issued to vehicles left in the Alta Loma High School lot without a permit will be reduced to about $20, according to San Bernardino County Sheriff's and courts officials.

The fine, actually a combination of fines and bail, was paid by drivers who were unwilling to fight the ticket in court. The county clerk's computer had been charging the maximum allowed under vehicle code 21113A, rather than a milder $20 levy possible.

Lt. Bruce Zeiner of the Rancho Cucamonga Sheriff's substation said the deputies in the city will now specify the codes corresponding to the lower bail amount.

Alta Loma High School occasionally will ask the sheriff's department to pay a visit to the school on Base Line

Road and issue citations to all vehicles parked without the special permit in the 350-car student parking lot.

However, Ward has said the $54 penalty is probably too high. The fine is so harsh that parents who often wind up footing the bill are so mad that they blame the school for the student's illegal parking rather than the

A lower fine, of $20 or less, still would give the students enough reason to not park in the lot without a permit, but wouldn't drive parents to distraction, he said.

Those who have received the $52 ticket in the past should not be expecting a partial refund. The person receiving the citation and paying the fine waived his or her right to challenge the ticket, according to Dennis L. Stout, a deputy district attorney who is Rancho Cucamonga's mayor.

Stout noted that the amount of the fine should not be an issue because the citation would not have been given in the first place had there been no

Homes on land for parking drive bank batty

One Raricho Cucamonga bank recently pulled into a spot of trouble when it decided to build a new parking lot to accommodate its busy office.

When Vineyard National Bank moved into a renovated building on Foothill Boulevard last year, bank officials quickly discovered a dearth of parking space for their customers and 100 employees.

Bank officials said the city of

Rancho Cucamonga asked the bank to build an extra parking

However, upon the land the bank purchased to construct the lot are two homes built in the 1920s that now are being considered for official historical landmark status.

Vineyard President Steven Sensenbach said the bank now will hold off and wait for Rancho Cucamonga's Historical Preservation Commission and City Council to decide if the houses have any historical significance.

'It was at the city's request that we try to find additional parking. In an attempt to accommodate the wishes of the people in the city, now we are finding out there is some idea of turning it into some sort of historical preserve.'

The bank president feels the two 1920s-era houses at 9605 and 9611 Estacia St. next to the bank's parking lot have no historical value.

Senior Planner Dan Coleman said the planning department has been discussing with the bank the possibility of sharing a new parking lot planned for the offices of the Cucamonga County Water District.

Coleman said the authority of the city's historical preservation ordinance has yet to be tested. That is, a project has not yet been halted due to the City Council bestowing landmark status upon a house or building.

The Historical Preservation

Commission is tentatively scheduled to consider whether or not to recommend such status at its June meeting.

Sensenbach wrote to the commission that the bank's board of directors are "extremely upset over the direction that the city is taking regarding this property."

A city staff report on the houses however states that the "modest California bungalows" are considered to hold historical

Cutting smog may spur big changes

By Richard Peraza

Smog control efforts are nibbling at Southern California lifestyle, starting with the revered drivers license.

Getting serious about air pollution is going to mean big changes, including raising the eligibility age for drivers licenses from 16 to 25, according to Barbara Sullivan, principal air quality planner for the Southern California Association of Governments.

Raising the age limit would reduce the number of drivers, triggering reductions in the number of smog-producing cars on the road, she told members of the San Bernardino Associated Governments recently.

'Are you going to move the voting age up first?," asked Rialto Councilman John "Mickey" McClure, amid chuckles of disbelief.

But Sullivan's words weren't lost on Redlands Mayor Carol Beswick, who also sits on the South Coast Air Quality Management District board. "I'm glad you all had a good laugh over it, but don't think it isn't going to come to you in some form," she warned.

Sacrifices won't be reserved for the young either, Sullivan continued. Auto registration surcharges for multi-car families are also being considered, she

The region faces hard decisions now, Sullivan said. "What kind of air quality do you want to live with? What amount of transportation restrictions are we willing to accept? And, obviously, the bottom line, how much are we willing to pay?"

SCAG is currently drafting a report outlining conservation efforts that can help the Southland attain federal clean air standards by the year 2007.

Regional officials are hoping to get a 20-year time extension from the Environmental Protection Agency after twice failing to meet five-year plan

Even with 20 years to work with, meeting the standards will be tough because a growing population will constantly be adding to smog, Sullivan said.

The 30 measures addressed in the SCAG report will only account for 150 tons of the 900 tons per year of pollutants the area must cut back to meet the 20-year goal, she said.

And even then, the sky will be far from pristine. "We may still have a small number of firststage alerts in the year 2007," Sullivan said. "But when you consider the tremendous number we have now, it is an improvement."

Because cars generate most Southland smog, many of the measures were lifted from SCAG's four-part Regional Mobility Plan, meant to reduce the burden on a highway system already in gridlock.

The plan's "strategy three" would most facilitate the smog goals, according to Sullivan.

There isn't a lot of optimism for that option though because of the radical lifestyle changes it would bring, said Roger Riga, SCAG's principal planner working on the mobility plan.

It attempts to eliminate rush hours by reaching into the business world, changing work hours for 80 percent of the population. Riga said it envisions 60 percent of the population with staggered modified workweeks, with features such as 12-hour days. Another 20 percent of all employees would stay home, relying on computer and telecommunication technology to allow them to set up.

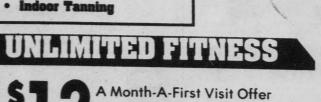

Social implications aside, the strategy holds the gloss of a lowprice leader, estimated to cost $42 billion to expand the highway system to keep traffic congestion at its current level through the year 2010, Riga said.

And although that price tag brought gasps from the SANBAG membership, it compared favorably with the $110 billion Riga said the current "project-by-project, one-step-ata-time approach" is expected to

Pennhill project thrown in limbo

Annexation may do in development

By David Madsen

Plans by the Pennhill Land Co. to resurrect a project the Upland City Council killed last October took a detour recently when the council decided to approach Rancho Cucamonga about annexing the land.

Pennhill partner Bill Garwin was stunned by the move.

"I don't know what we will do now," he said.

Garwin has been trying to win approval of the development for the past two years.

The project, a 99-lot subdivision just east of the controversial San Antonio Lakes proposed planned community, lost favor with the council last vear because of its proximity to the 1,500-unit Lakes, which was just starting its review process as the smaller tract was up for approval.

The Lakes project is currently on hold, waiting for a proposed expressway plan to unfold.

This subdivision is considered by some to be the first step in the Lakes project.

"The area should grow out to the border, not in from it. I think this project is premature for us, said Councilman Al Canestro.

Councilman Frank Carpenter recommended approaching Rancho Cucamonga about taking over jurisdiction of the leg-shaped 24.6 acre parcel.

"I'm not in favor of trying to work with an island ... My concern is about the city's ability to provide services in this area," he said.

Fears that the city could not afford the extra services needed for the tract were expressed by Councilman Thomas McGilloway and Canestro.

The land is bordered by Rancho Cucamonga on the east and cut off from the rest of the city by the Cucamonga Creek Flood Control Channel on the Carpenter has already contacted Rancho Cucuamonga officals, who have expressed an interest in the parcel, he said.

However, he would not disclose the names of any of the Garwin complained that until seven months ago, the San Antonio Lakes project and this development were separate.

"The property was never processed with San Antonio Lakes. It has a separate environmental impact report and separate general plan," he said.

Since the council linked the two projects, he has been unable to get anywhere with it, he said.

As the site currently stands, police and fire personnel would have to cross into Rancho Cucamonga before reaching Upland homes in emergency

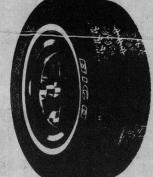

However Garwin told the council he already has worked out a plan with the city fire and police departments to solve the

Fan and young actor make double take due to letter

By Suzanne Sproul

Even the word coincidence doesn't seem appropriate for this story.

After all, who would think that a fan letter to actor Christian Bale of "The Empire of the Sun" mailed from Rancho Cucamonga to England would be handdelivered by a boy who played Christian's double in the movie?

OK, let's start from the beginning.

"My dad did some work for Christian's dad and it was he who suggested being in the film when they needed a double. I auditioned and didn't get it. Then they asked me back and that time I got it. At the time we lived three doors away from the Bales and didn't know it," said Shane Fry, who stood in for Bale in the successful Steven Spielberg movie, which was nominated for six Academy Awards.

Shane and his mother, Diane, traveled to Spain to shoot the movie. Christian and Shane fast became friends.

"It was all good fun. I worked on the film for seven weeks. I was Christian's double. They would take long back shots of me. I like acting," said 14-yearold Shane.

Under British law, anyone 16 or younger is prohibited from working more than a 40-hour week. The filming took many more hours.

"I had read the book first and liked it very much. I enjoyed working with Steven Spielberg and I enjoyed the film," Shane Shane's family, though, decided to move to Rancho Cucamonga. Vickie Rigsby, Shane's great aunt, and other family members already were there.

"Just before leaving England, Christian received a fan letter from Cucamonga. Christian asked me if I could hand-deliver it. It would get here faster and it would be nice," Shane said.

But moving took a bit longer - about a year. And so Crystal Burton of Cucamonga, who wrote the letter, simply waited. It wasn't her first letter to the English actor, but this time was special, especially after Rigsby told her about the plan to have Shane personally deliver it from England.

"I thought it would be a very special way to deliver the letter. I thought it would be interesting and something Crystal would always remember." Rigsby said.

"I just wanted to write him and tell him how good he was in the movie," Crystal said.

So a week ago, after the Fry family got settled, Christian's reply finally was delivered. Rigsby invited her family and opening of the letter.

Shane delivered the letter to Crystal, his fellow Cucamonga Junior High School classmate. In it, Christian explained the circumstances and thanked Crystal for her letter.

Christian plans to visit Shane in about five weeks. Rigsby said she hopes Crystal can find the time to meet Christian.

"I'll make time to see him," Crystal said.

And some people don't believe it's a small world.

Hearing on trucking firm set

The owner of a transportation company in south Montclair will get his day in City Hall.

Gary Hann, owner and operator of Eagle Trucking Co. at 10984 Ramona Ave., will get a hearing before the May 23 Planning Commission to determine whether he still has to live by city constraints.

After fielding a series of complaints by neighbors about noise and dust from the trucking yard, the city set down a number of restrictions including chain barriers, no late hours and no trucks on dirt areas.

Planners approve tract on groves

A plan to create 63 single family homes on one of the few remaining citrus groves in northeast Upland has won the unanimous approval of the city's Planning Commission.

The commission will recommend approval of the zone change and tract approval for the 35.2-acre site at 22nd Street and Euclid Avenue.

The developer, J.M. Peters Company Inc. of Newport Beach, has proposed to build 63 homes ranging in price from $350,000 to $450,000.

While the night hour restriction has been followed, many of the other requirements have not been met, said Community Redevelopment Director Robert Clark. Hann wants to be released from the agreement, which expired last week, he said.

"He doesn't want to do anything that costs money or requires work because he's in the process of selling."

However, a broker representing Hann told the commission that sale of the property could take up to a year.

Unreinforced buildings tracked

By Richard Peraza

Cities that value their sales and property tax revenue had better get cracking on programs to make unreinforced masonry buildings less prone to earthquake damage.

Thomas Tobin, executive director of the state Seismic Safety Commission, told members of the San Bernardino Associated Governments recently that a major earthquake holds potential to devastate the local business community.

His organization is helping local governments comply with a new state law requiring cities to inventory unreinforced masonry buildings and take steps to improve their chances of survival by adding steel reinforcement.

"It's not over when the shaking stops. The disruption caused by this is not just broken buildings," Tobin said.

The city of Whittier, which had no program to retrofit the aging masonry buildings with steel reinforcement, sustained $35 million in damages during an earthquake there last year, he

But, like aftershocks, the repercussions spread much further because those older buildings usually house local businesses, often in downtown areas, he said

The Whittier quake closed 400 businesses immediately and kept them locked up for 10 days. Fully 100 of them were still closed a month later and 30 of the buildings were so badly damaged they had to be torn down completely, sometimes spelling the end for the businesses that once called them home, Tobin said.

That resulted in a 50 percent to 80 percent drop in retail sales communitywide, reducing the city's sales tax revenue flow to a trickle, Tobin said.

And although it's been eight months since the quake, the legacy continues.

The memories of those crumpled buildings live long in shoppers' minds; they're opting for a nearby regional mail and staying away from the downtowr village which held many of the unreinforced masonry buildings.

If that's not enough incentive, city officials should consider liability lawsuits that could follow an earthquake. Unreinforced masonry buildings don't just collapse in eartquakes, sections of them often fall on neighboring structures, parked cars and passing pedestrians, Tobin said. "Even though you don't own the buildings, you are responsible for and have liability for public safety," he said.

"The probability of an earthquake striking this area in the next 20 years is 55 percent, not a little earthquake like Whittier, but a major earthquake," he said.

The Whittier quake was a mere warning shot, as disasters go, according to Tobin. "It lasted four seconds. The earthquake we have to plan for will last 40

Five West Valley young women have been chosen by the American Legion Ladies Auxiliary Post 112 in Ontario to participate this summer in the Girls State program.

The program involves high school girls who participate in planned events in Fresno dealing with government and patriotism.

Those who will be participating in the program are Lisa Doty of Montclair High School, Erin Berry of Ontario High School, Angela Alford of Chaffey High School, Manissa "Missy" Pedroza of Etiwanda High School, and Cindy Parker of Alta Loma High School.

Doty is a junior at Montclair
High School. Her school activities include participating on the varsity soccer team, varsity track team, band auxiliary unit, Student Council and Associated Student Body
secretary. She also has been a representative to Students Against Drunk Driving and is a member of the California Scholastic Federation.

Berry, daughter of Dave and Veronica Berry, was born in Wurtzburg, Germany, and is a junior at Ontario High School. She is a member of the school's soccer and tennis teams, band, and Student Council. She is an activities commissioner, a member of the California Scholastic Federation, is active in the performing arts and is in the jazz choir.

Alford, the daughter of Sherrie Alford, is a junior at Chaffey High School. She is a member of the swim team and is on the school honor roll. She is involved in the Gifted and Talented Education program. She hopes to attend a four-year university after graduation and possibly enter the science field.

Pedroza, daughter of David and Martha Pedroza, is a junior at Etiwanda High School. She is a member of the Mock Trial Team, the California Scholarship Federation, Spanish Club, Ski Club and the S Club. She also is a varsity songleader and will be a member of the Student Council. She also was a member of the band.

Parker, daughter of Glenn and Linda Parker, is a junior at Alta Loma High School. She is a member of the California Scholarship Federation, the school academic decathalon team, Foreign Language Club, varsity songleading squad and the pep squad. She also has been active in the performing arts, is the features editor for the "Tepee Times," vice president of the Math and Science Club and was an extra on the television movie, "Gang of Four." She hopes to be a neurosurgeon or a general surgeon.

Rabbi Earl Kaplan, spiritual leader of Temple Beth Israel, recently returned from a 19-day fact-finding mission to Israel. Kaplan and several hundred rabbinic colleagues gathered in Jerusalem for the annual convention of the Central Conference of American Rabbis (which represents 1,500 reform rabbis throughout the U.S. and Canada).

Becky Lease, 16, of Chino Hills, has been chosen as a semifinalist in 'Teen magazine's 1988 Great Model Search, one of the nation's biggest annual hunts for new modeling talent. Her photo appears in this month's issue of 'Teen as one of the 16 semifinalists in her region.

Betty Anderson of Alta Loma, Marilyn Bess of Montclair, and Carol Rhodes of Upland have been selected to receive Cal Poly Pomona's Outstanding Staff Awards for 1988. The three awardees were honored for their service and dedication to the university at the annual Staff Day luncheon.

Anderson, secretary in the communications arts department, has worked at Cal Poly since 1984, gaining the admiration of the department's faculty and students alike. She has served on a variety of departmental committees including budget, scheduling, curriculum, and retention-tenure-promotion; the College of Arts Staff Morale Committee, and United Way Committee.

Bess, secretary to the dean of the College of Agriculture, began her employment at Cal Poly seven years ago. She has been active at the university in a number of different capacities, including service on the University House Committee for the past two years, the 1983 Outstanding Staff Awards Committee, and regularly participating in in-service training programs. The valley recycling bandwa-gon is already beginning to roll, but no one is very sure in which

County Solid Waste Advisory Council members complained recently that the region's effort is too fragmented, composed of individual community efforts without much of a united game plan.

New recycling programs are in various stages of planning or implementation in Ontario, Colton and Rialto, but no one at the county level is familiar with the details of each program or can say if they can be made to relate to each other, members were

"I see no reason why every little city should be working on its own need. It's a common problem for the valley and we need to work on a common solu-tion," said Don Cook, representing Loma Linda Disposal.

Al Simonian of Western Waste Industries suggested the county tap into an effort already in full swing, pointing to the West End Solid Waste Alternatives Coalition and an Ontario curbside recycling program expected to begin in October.

It would provide an excellent opportunity for a pilot plan focusing on one area, "so we can monitor and see what the results are. We can measure the results of what's coming out of there for public participation."

Max Buchanan, county acting director of solid waste management, said recycling programs live or die based on the amount of public participation they gen-erate. And he agreed it would be useful to study that aspect under controlled conditions.

"But until I can get a recycle coordinator on board, I just flat don't have the manpower to put that on," he said.

Buchanan said his request for two new employees to work ex-clusively on a recycling program has gotten past the county's hir-ing freeze but is now mired in red tape.

He said he hopes to have the new staffers on board in the next few weeks.

It's evidence the county moves too slowly, according to Rancho Cucamonga Councilwoman Deborah Brown.

"We don't want to wait a year for this commission. We want to get rolling, we feel we need to get moving right now," she said. "Our constituency is screaming for something to be done now, so we look like we're running in all different directions," Brown ex-

Buchanan said it's hoped an upcoming landfill study will help provide some direction.

County supervisors recently approved a $348,900 contract with URS Corp. to provide planning services to update the county Solid Waste Management Master

That contract will be modified to provide also for a closer look at Fontana and Milliken landfills, Buchanan said.

A resulting waste management plan will examine various possi-bilities of making the best possible use of available landfill

Among the subjects considered will be traditional landfill techniques, various recycling programs, composting and transfer operations (central gathering of trash for shipment elsewhere), he

The studies will be conducted with an eye toward expanding use of the landfills, both of which are expected to fill and close within the next five years or so.

"We do know we have a difficult item to sell at both sites,"
Buchanan said, noting the city of Ontario is on record opposing Ontario is on record opposing expansion of Milliken and the cities of Fontana and Rialto — Fontana Landfill is actually in Rialto — feel the same about their landfill.

Buchanan said he hopes to have a basic idea of possible programs for the sites in about a month, and a conceptual plan by September or October.

The study will be accompanied by an examination of the local waste stream — composition of the trash going into those landfills, broken down into percent-age categories such as ferrous metals, aluminum, glass, paper and wood pulp.

That information will reveal what types of materials can most effectively be recycled, Buchanan said.

If the county's trash were dumped on an acre of land for a year, "that pile would be a mile high," he said. "The sad part is 70 percent of that stack would be read weste paper and wood waste and waste paper and, in my opinion, that shouldn't be there at all. That's the big thing we're going after this year."

Begin the ad with the name of the article or service you are offering. If you have an apartment for rent or property for sale, start your ad with the location. Be Complete. Put yourself in the reader's place. If you were considering buying this item, what would you want to know about it? Give the item's age, condition, size, brand name and any other information needed to describe it accurately and completely. Avoid Abbreviations. A few, easily recognizable abbreviations can help you save space. But don't overdo it! Too many abbreviations will make your ad look like a secret code message. Rather than trying to figure out what you have to say, confused readers will just go on to the next ad.
